

WHALEY IS SENT FOR.

A Committee Dispatched from the Populist Meeting

TO BRING HIM TO ITS MIDST

Where He Was to be Welcomed—But Mr. Whaley Was Ill and Couldn't Go—Promised to Come Later.

The Populist women celebrated their success in their own party last night at the Populist league room. They had prepared a programme of their own but were headed off by the men who had the first inning and consumed the greater part of the evening with Populist speeches. The ladies had provided refreshments consisting of cake and lemonade. As usual with men, they did all the talking and ate and drank most of the good things.

The disappointment of the evening was when a committee consisting of L. T. Yount, A. M. Harvey and — Barnes was appointed to call upon the late Populist convert, E. H. Whaley, and invite him to be present. When the committee returned, they reported that Mr. Whaley was confined to his bed with a high fever, and could not be present, but that he would be with them just as soon as possible. This statement was greeted with cheers.

H. H. Brown made a suffrage speech, in which he predicted that the People's party would win, because it had dared to endorse woman suffrage. "It was women who emancipated the slaves, and they will now emancipate the people from industrial slavery," he said. "We have cast our bark in the current of progress, and woman's hand will be the first to raise the sail that will carry us to victory."

State Treasurer Biddle said: "I am in hearty accord with the suffrage movement and I am sorry I cannot help with my words as I would like to. I am in favor of equal suffrage because it is right and just and because I am assured that if the women are given the right of suffrage it will result in a more exalted system of government and a higher and purer system of politics. Whatever I do in this campaign will be for suffrage."

G. C. Clemens was called and responded with his usual alacrity: "I understand that our special business is to be surprised and I have sense enough not to keep supper waiting." Still he talked for half an hour. He told how he had been converted to woman suffrage and said he would rather see the Populists defeated with the suffrage endorsement than to be successful without it.

While Clemens was talking, S. M. Scott walked up the aisle to the speaker's stand, in full view of everyone. One brave little woman started to applaud, but no one else joined her.

Scott was next called for, and started out with a pun prepared for the campaign. "You have heard of moral and political ruin," he said, "and I have one man in mind who will meet Morrill and political ruin in the coming campaign."

He told how Mr. Eskridge as chairman of the committee on resolutions in the Republican convention had clipped off the ruffles of the Republican party dress, and he called the ruffles free silver, prohibition and woman suffrage. With a reckless disregard of grammar, which is characteristic of Mr. Scott, he said: "I am glad the women is with us."

The chairman then asked the next lieutenant governor to stand up and Mr. Furbeck modestly came forward.

Some one then made a motion to give the rest of the evening to the women and it was carried as all the men who had anything to say had said it.

Mrs. Bina A. Otis introduced Mrs. Furbeck who read an address telling the men how the woman intended to help them.

Mrs. Otis was then in turn introduced by Mrs. Furbeck.

Mrs. J. R. Hagne recited an original woman suffrage poem, and Mrs. S. H. Hargrave read an address. Mrs. A. Wardall and Mrs. A. D. Struble also spoke and then the California Coxey quartette sang one of their songs.

The ladies brought out the cake and lemonade.

SCOTT AND SUBTREASURY.

Why Has His Favorite Plan Been Entirely Abandoned?

S. M. Scott, who was nominated for congress in the Fourth district by the Populists, has arrived in the city again. Mr. Scott was the author of the subtreasury plan which brought him into prominence in Farmers' Alliance circles. It is noteworthy that no Populist platform now contains any reference to the subtreasury plan.

"Mr. Scott," said a JOURNAL reporter to him, "have you abandoned the subtreasury scheme?"

"I haven't anything to say about it just now. You come out to my meetings and hear me."

"Will you advocate it in your campaign?"

"We are going to advocate free coinage of silver."

"Do you still believe in the subtreasury plan as a remedy for the existing depressed condition of business?"

"Now—well—look here, I will have to go down street. I will see you later."

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

THE RUMHOLES SHUT.

Capt. Gish Can Close the Joints and He Has,

FOR WHICH LET US BE THANKFUL.

If He Will Keep Them Closed He Is Entitled to the Moral Support of the Good People of Topeka.

Police Captain Peter Gish called at the STATE JOURNAL office about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and complained that the STATE JOURNAL was without cause making it very unpleasant for him, and that he wanted to talk the matter over, and find out why the JOURNAL continued its "attacks" upon him. Mr. Gish was informed that this paper regarded the manner of conducting the police department as too loose and careless. The number of joints and disorderly houses was on the increase, and certain quarters of town had already begun to be notorious on account of it. The defense was made that the county officials had not been doing their duty, and this made it impossible for the police to suppress lawbreakers. Later in the evening it was reported about the streets that the joints were all being closed, and the orders of Capt. Gish, a reporter on visiting him found that the police captain had determined to close up all the liquor law violators.

By this action Captain Gish proves to be a fact what has been denied again and again, that they have the power to control the immoral and criminal element of the city.

Captain Gish knows the location of all the clubs, and is familiar with their methods as is shown by the fact that in a few hours he visited eleven places and ordered their keepers to close up, and he received assurance that they would obey his instructions.

If Captain Gish can close the clubs in one day he can surely keep them closed; or at least make his enforcement of the law so interesting for the clubmen and jointists that they would be glad to go out of business.

To the JOURNAL reporter Capt. Gish said he ordered all the clubs closed except the three which have been joined by the county attorney. These three being the places kept by Nick Childs, John Collingsworth and Peter Schaffer.

The captain then gave the reporter the list of clubs he ordered closed, which included the following:

Ben Jordans place on Railroad street, North Topeka.

Guy Pier, over the Rock Island restaurant, on lower Kansas avenue.

Wilson, brick building on Kansas avenue, between First and Crane street.

Chris Smith, east side of Kansas avenue between Second and Third streets.

Al Hayslip, east side of Kansas avenue between Third and Fourth street.

Schlusser's place on Quincy street between Fourth and Fifth streets.

Club on East Sixth street between Quincy and Kansas avenue, over Klingaman's drug store.

Club on Fifth street near Santa Fe depot.

Moyer's place on North Klein street.

Clements' place in Bouge's Flats.

Big Jim McHenry's club on East First street.

Captain Gish said he could not remember the exact location of some of the places to describe them, but that he could go to them without difficulty. He also said he did not know the names of some of the club keepers.

In addition to the list given Captain Gish said he went to another club in the Heery building on Third street, but that it was closed when he was there and he did not see the proprietors.

Police Commissioner Whiting, when asked about the sudden reformatory measures of Captain Gish said: "No, the commissioners have issued no recent order for the closing of the clubs, but the police have had orders since away back to close up everything and keep all the places closed to every possible degree."

If they had orders from "away back" why didn't the commissioners see that their orders were enforced before this. Is it true that the police force pays no attention to orders from the police commissioners until it gets ready to?

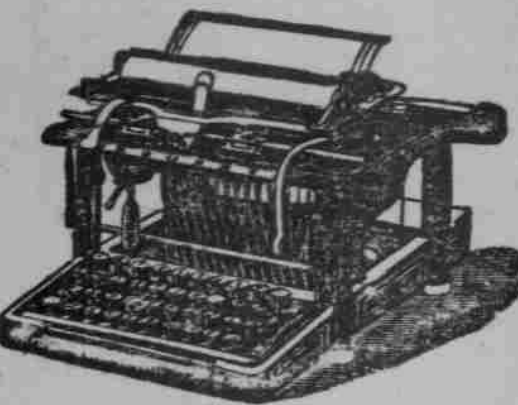

"We have tried for several months," continued Mr. Whiting, "to get the county officials to unite with us and take some concerted action in this matter of closing the clubs, but until now we have been unable to do anything. Several weeks ago we consulted the sheriff and he informed us that the county attorney, Harry Safford, would not do anything until after primaries, and now that the primaries are over, we are trying to do something. Captain Gish now has made an agreement with the county attorney and the two departments will work together in the matter. It was on account of his agreement with Harry Safford that Captain Gish ordered the places closed at this time."

In whatever way they have fixed up the matter, the people of Topeka are to be congratulated that the joints are shut and in so far as Captain Gish is responsible for it, he is entitled to credit. But if he can close them up one day, he can close them up all the year round, and we shall look to him to do it.

The White Boys Arrested for Petty Larceny—Police News.

The White boys again and Clarence McDowell! They were in the police court today for the—th time on the favorite charge of petty larceny. Last evening the boys stole a coat from a colored man named D. C. Duke who was doing a job of painting across the street from the Santa Fe depot. They took the coat to a junk dealer on Kansas avenue near Fifth street and sold it for five cents.

With this sum they bought a package of "straight outs" which they smoked and inhaled into their lungs with great relish.

Judge Emminger told the boys that he was tired of having them before him. He fined Frank White and Clarence McDowell $25 each, and Charley White $15, with the remark that "he guessed that would keep them off the street for awhile."

The other arrest made yesterday was that of a former 64 years old who was drunk. He was old enough to know better. He was fined $5.
